

Joint Job Evaluation Project stalls

UVic's Joint Job Evaluation Project has reached a setback after the executive of CUPE Local 951, one of the partners in the project, declined to support both the process and the questionnaire devised by the Joint Job Evaluation Committee.

A five-page memorandum signed by the six members of the University of Victoria/CUPE Local 951 Joint Job Evaluation Committee to the executive of Local 951 outlines several reasons why the project has been put on hold.

"In light of these setbacks, the Joint Job Evaluation Committee is left no alternative but to discontinue the project at this time and to recommend to the parties that they address, once and for all, the fundamental issues... if the project is to ever successfully resume," concludes the memo.

Doug Sprenger, President of CUPE Local 951, says that his membership "remains very committed" to job evaluation. He points out that following the release of the memo from the Joint Job Evaluation Committee, a meeting was held between three members of the Human Resources department and six members of CUPE Local 951. Three more labour-management meetings have been requested by CUPE to discuss the job evaluation program.

Sprenger adds that the membership of CUPE Local 951 will have two opportunities to discuss job evaluation. A general meeting will be held on Nov. 18 from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and an emergency general meeting will be held on Nov. 25 from 11:30 to 1 p.m. Both meetings will be in MacLaurin D288.

Human Resources Director Peter van der Leeden says he is optimistic the job evaluation process will get back on track.

"Sure, we ran into a problem, but we're working on things to get the process going again," says van der Leeden.

Going green, UVic Vice-President, Administration Trevor Matthews assists tree-planter John Kelson, of Conservation International Canada, in planting western red cedar seedlings in front of the Cunningham Building. The University received the seedlings through its program to recycle used printer cartridges. For every cartridge Canadian Laser Products receives from UVic, it donates a seedling. So far, 60 cartridges have been collected and the company says it will continue to donate a seedling for each cartridge it receives.

Enrolment up three per cent

Official student enrolment statistics for the 1992-93 academic year, released Nov. 4 by the Institutional Analysis office, show a three-per-cent growth in the total full-time equivalent (FTE) enrolment over last fall. According to the new figures, UVic's total headcount stands at 15,328, with the FTE student population listed as 10,971.

Administrative Registrar Cled Thomas says, that overall, the increase is moderate, with decreased undergraduate enrolment in the lower-level years and increased enrolment in upper-level years.

The largest increases in FTE enrolment took place in the Faculties of Engineering (23 per cent) and Graduate Studies (11 per cent). The FTE enrolment in the Faculty of Education shrank by eight per cent, due to enrolment limits in the Bachelor of Education (secondary curriculum) program in preparation for an expanded post-degree professional program beginning in the next academic year.

Thomas said enrolment limitations in the Faculty of Arts and Science, which have been in effect over the past two years, are slowing down the student growth in that Faculty.

"Taking out the figures for the School of Business, which is a steadily developing program, Arts and Science shows just a 0.3 per cent increase, even though the total shows a 1.3-per-cent increase in Arts and Science," said Thomas.

The FTE figures do not take into account full-time undergraduate co-op education students who are on work terms this fall.

Nominations open for V-P position

Nominations have opened and a search committee has been struck to find a Vice-President Finance and Operations.

The new position will replace UVic's Vice-President Administration and Vice-President Finance positions, currently held by Trevor Matthews and Robert McQueen, respectively. Matthews will retire on Aug. 31, 1993 and McQueen will retire at the end of December, 1992.

Reporting to the President, the Vice-President Finance and Operations will be responsible for the financial management of the University and the administration of Computing and Systems Services, Student and Ancillary Services, Campus Planning, Buildings and Grounds, and the University Centre and Maltwood Museum. The new Vice-President will also be a member of the President's Advisory Council.

Members of the University community are invited to suggest possible candidates to the Office of the President.

The search committee, chaired by President David Strong, includes UVic Board of Governors appointees William Anderson, Douglas Enns and Sandra Harper, Student and Ancillary Services Director Jim Griffith, Faculty of Law Dean Maureen Maloney, Mathematics and Statistics Professor and BoG member Bill Pfaffenberger, Vice-President Academic and Provost Sam Scully, University Librarian Marnie Swanson, and Faculty of Law Professor Mary Anne Waldron.

UVic fourth among peers

UVic ranks fourth in its category of 12 Canadian universities, according to a special 54-page report in the Nov. 9 issue of Maclean's magazine.

In its second annual attempt to compare 45 of the nation's universities, UVic was slotted behind Waterloo, Simon Fraser and Guelph in the "comprehensive" category, which the magazine defines as institutions offering a significant amount of research activity and a wide range of programs—including professional degrees—at the graduate and undergraduate levels.

UVic placed ahead of York, Carleton, New Brunswick, Memorial, Regina, Concordia, Windsor and Quebec in the survey.

UVic also placed fourth in the magazine's list of the top 20 university libraries, based on library holdings per student, expenses as a percentage of the budget and the proportion of library funds spent on acquisitions.

This year's ranking system marks a radical departure from last year's, which attempted to rate all universities in a single category. This year, universities were divided into three groups: medical/doctoral, led by McGill, Toronto and Queen's; comprehensive; and primarily undergraduate, led by Mount Allison, Trent and Acadia.

Further comments on the Maclean's survey will appear in the next issue of The Ring.

What's Blooming at UVic?

Additions to the University Finnerly Gardens, adjacent to the Interfaith Chapel, include the following perennials: Purple Meadow Rue (Thalictrum), Purple Cone flower (Echinacea), Lobelia 'Blue Magic,' Russian Sage (Perovskia) and several varieties of Heather, all of which are now in bloom.

The berries of many plants are quite colorful now, particularly the bright violet berries of the Beautyberry (Callicarpa) and the showy pink fruit of the European Spindle Tree, which splits to show bright orange seeds.

Many trees are showing good fall colours of crimson and yellow, such as the Ginkgo, Oxydendron and Liquidambar.

Sessionals' concerns revealed in questionnaire

BY DONNA DANYLCHUK

A survey of sessionals teaching at UVic, conducted by the Faculty Association, indicates there are many temporary teachers on campus who want to see distinct improvements in their working conditions.

The investigation of the status of sessionals was undertaken last spring on the initiative of the executive of the Faculty Association. A questionnaire was created by an ad hoc committee of the Faculty Association headed by the executive treasurer, Dr. Bill Wadge (Computer Science). The results of the questionnaire have been compiled over the past month.

Establishing the number of sessionals to receive the questionnaire presented a challenge at the outset, says Wadge. "How many sessionals are there? That's a good question," he said in an interview last week. The official figure given for the number of sessionals at UVic is 300, Wadge notes. But, there are many more people teaching under temporary contracts, he says. Noting that the V-P Academic's task force on teaching sent their questionnaire to 1,700 people—including 550 faculty members—teaching in some capacity at the University.

The questionnaire to sessionals received replies from 42 departments with all faculties except Engineering well represented. Typically, there were four to six replies per department, and a total of 123 replies. Sixty-six respondents identified themselves as female and 55 per cent as male.

"I think it's pretty accurate. I think it's quite representative," says Wadge of the findings. "We asked straightforward questions with room for comments. And we condensed the comments."

The summary report of the questionnaire indicates that the median age of sessionals is 42—belying a popular perception of sessionals as young academics starting off in their careers and "a bit of a surprise," acknowledges Wadge.

The report shows that many sessionals are well-qualified academically: 57 (48 per cent) of the respondents have MAs; 43 (36 per cent) have PhDs; three have EdD's; six have MED's; and nine have BAs. Females represented 37 per cent of the PhDs and 54 per cent of the MAs.

There is a wide variation in the number of years of teaching experience reported by sessionals with 18 reporting more than 10. They teach at all levels, graduate as well as undergraduate—only 12.5 per cent teach at the 100 level alone.

Sessionals reported teaching at UVic for periods ranging from a few months up to 27 years. "The median was three years experience, but 16 reported 10 or more years."

Only 27 respondents reported being members of the Faculty Club and "most of the comments were to the effect that it is too expensive." Full membership in the Faculty Association is held by only four per cent of the respondents, and associate memberships are held by nine per cent. Respondents' reports on their pay scale indicate that many sessionals "don't know what step they are at in the pay scale." There is a formula for determining what step they are in, and sessionals should check that they are getting paid what they ought to be, says Wadge.

The summary report makes clear that many sessionals are not happy with their treatment. "We summarized 47 per cent of the comments as indicating they felt the treatment was at least fair or 'ok'; but 61 comments (58 percent) indicated serious dissatisfaction. They typically complained of feeling isolated, ignored, disrespected and/or second class. Many also felt excluded from any decision-making and from relevant information."

"It's common for them to say that they're excluded from various things—decision-making, social engagements," says Wadge. "Sometimes their names are left off departmental faculty lists. They just somehow don't appear."

Harassment was a concern for 26 per cent of the respondents. "Twenty-six per cent reported that they had experienced or witnessed harassment. Of these, 73 per cent were women."

Comments on harassment were filed by 34 of the respondents. "Many considered working conditions normal for sessionals to constitute harassment or discrimination: second class treatment, poor salary, permanent insecurity. Some 18 reported more serious problems, such as being openly insulted, having their jobs threatened and seeing others terminated arbitrarily. A few described systematic and truly sadistic campaigns mounted by determined superiors," states the summary report.

Sessionals often work in very little office space and have to share with others, adds Wadge. "They are afraid to complain, mainly because hiring and firing procedures are very informal and, in lots of departments, a complete mystery. For regular faculty there are a lot of elaborate procedures for hiring and for tenure or lack of it. There are none for sessionals. There is not even a simple seniority system."

"Not only do sessionals teach at a fairly high level—but we asked them what kind of contract they preferred and 51 out of 123 said they would prefer tenure track. Almost everybody working on or with a PhD would prefer a tenure track appointment involving re-search," Wadge says.

Associate V-P reports on academic impact of Games

BY DONNA DANYLCHUK

The anticipated academic impact on UVic of the summer 1994 Commonwealth Games is becoming a focus of intense discussion and study.

"The situation is fairly fluid," Associate V-P Academic John Schofield reported to Senate on Nov. 4. Schofield is chair of the recently-appointed task force appointed to assess the academic impact of the Games. His remarks to Senate followed Dr. Bill Gordon's statement that, "we don't seem to have a real grasp of the implication of the impact of the Games on academic programs....It seems that during the summer term a lot of students are going to have difficulty finding accommodation."

"We have some information on the designs the Victoria Commonwealth Games Society (VCGS) has on our facilities. We don't yet have the final word. We continue to investigate," Schofield reported.

The current information indicates that the Student Union Building, Graduate Students' Centre, Health Services, Commons Block, married and family student housing and student residences would be in use by the VCGS from Aug. 7 to 31, Schofield said.

It is possible that, from July 26, 1994 on, the VCGS would like exclusive use of the residences, Commons Block, SUB, and Graduate Students' Centre, and priority use of the McKinnon complex, he added. The VCGS will probably also want shared use of these facilities from late May on, he said,

Of the 51 respondent sessionals who would like tenure track positions, 23 are women. "We think there is an equity issue involved because most [about 60 per cent] of sessionals are women," Wadge notes.

"My personal opinion is that an excellent way to improve the gender balance at UVic would be to promote all the [qualified] sessionals—both men and women—to tenure track jobs. There are sessionals here who want these jobs, they are already here doing the job, and they would do research. This would go a long way towards their getting the respect they want."

Job security was the top priority of respondents who ranked a list of areas for improvement. "It's unusual for sessionals to be fired in mid term. But, not being rehired is not uncommon. It happens all the time. The University is not accountable....The sessional appointment letter makes clear that sessionals should not expect more than they are getting. But, they naturally expect more when they are doing the job," says Wadge.

Other priorities listed by the respondents are salary, hiring procedures, benefits, class size, course load, and treatment.

The questionnaire asked sessionals to give their opinions on the 12 senior instructor positions, created last year, which give the incumbents job security for a minimum of three years. The general feeling is that there are not enough—the appointments are only "for a select few."

The "vast majority" of respondents would like the Faculty Association to fight to improve the areas of concern indicated by sessionals, and also asked the FA to do a "better job of informing sessionals about the FA."

Wadge asks any sessionals with concerns to contact him or another member of the Faculty Association executive at 721-7939.

Field Hockey Vikes capture fifth CIAU championship

UVic's women's field hockey team won their fifth Canadian Interuniversity Athletic Union championship in nine years by defeating the University of New Brunswick Redsticks 2-0. The Vikes overpowered their opponents with 19 penalty corners and 29 shots on goal. The Redsticks, in their first CIAU final, managed only one penalty corner and a solo shot. Only exceptional goalkeeping by Redstick's Krista Thompson held the Vikes to two goals. Despite an almost constant first-half barrage, the Vikes were scoreless until the second half when forward Rochelle Low broke into the penalty area and bounced her shot off Thompspon's pads. Juliet Anderton fired the rebound into the net.

Four minutes later, Low, who was named player of the game, burst into the penalty area, drew Thompson out, and passed the ball to Brenda Lannard who fired it into the goal giving the Vikes a 2-0 edge.

Later, Lannard and Sue Reid both hit the goalpost and at the 29 minute mark, Reid and Low crossed the hard ball and Low flicked it toward the net. It looked like Low would score until Thompson got the tips of her fingers on the ball and deflected it.

Vike's goalkeeper, Sara Plumpton, who had shutouts in all four tournament games, had to make only one save on a high shot by Josette Babineau in the last seconds of the game.

Vikes coach Lynne Beecroft praised her players for their tenacity. "I have to give my players credit—they never let up. I'm pleased with them as they showed a lot of class."

The winning game, played before about 600 fans at Eric Hamber High School in Vancouver, gave the Vikes their first ever back-to-back CIAU championships.

Task forces address Commonwealth Games issues

BY KEN FARIS

Ten task forces have been created to deal with the many internal and operational issues the University faces as it prepares to host the Athletes Village, the badminton competitions, track and field events, and the opening and closing ceremonies for the Victoria Commonwealth Games in August, 1994. Mandates of the task forces include issues ranging from academic implications of the Games to new facility construction.

Dr. John Schofield, Associate Vice-President Academic, chairs the Academic Implications and Related Issues Task Force. The group will work out registration details for the fall '94 term and the sale of course materials from the Bookstore, assess the impact of the Games on Extension programs due to the loss of classrooms and residences, and discuss the timing of the return of residences and food services to the University for the start of the fall term.

The Administrative and Support Issues Task Force, chaired by Associate Vice-President Administration Dr. Fred Fischer, will explore risk management considerations, special accounting requirements, and personnel policies such as vacation scheduling and volunteer services.

Jim Griffith, Director of Student and Ancillary Services, heads up the Athletic Venue Operations Task Force. This group will co-ordinate UVic's athletic and recreational scheduling during the Games, tie in a recreational program for the Athlete's Village, examine potential revenue losses from the use of UVic athletic facilities during the Games, and co-ordinate the procedure for security accreditation of maintenance and gymnasium personnel.

The Task Force on Communications and Systems, led by Herb Widdifield, Director of Computing and Systems Services, will deal with the impact of the Games on UVic's telephone, mail and computer systems, and also explore UVic's possible use of equipment and communication systems left behind after the Games.

Maltwood Art Museum and Gallery Director Martin Segger chairs the Cultural Programs Task Force, which will look at the use of the University Centre Auditorium and the Maltwood Gallery for cultural programs attached to the Games. The task force will also deal with possible conflicting events, and revenue and cost implications resulting from the use of UVic facilities for Games' cultural events.

The newest task force is one formed to deal with Human Resources Issues. Chaired by Peter van der Leeden, Human Resources Director, the task force will look at vacation policy options for the summer of 1994 and a policy regarding time off for UVic employees wanting to be Commonwealth Games volunteers. The task force will also draw up a list of employees requiring security accreditation during the Games and a staff accreditation policy.

The Director of Campus Planning, Gerry Robson, is chair of the New Facility Construction Task Force, to address issues centred on construction and alterations to Centennial Stadium and the playing fields, student residences, the Student Union Building, the McKinnon Building and the UVic Gordon Head Complex.

The Public Relations and Information Task Force is co-chaired by Hal Spelliscy, Vice-President Development & External Relations, and Evelyn Samuel, Director of Public Relations and Information Services. Its mandate is to develop a program to keep the campus community informed of developments leading up to the Games, to act as a liaison with the Victoria Commonwealth Games Society's Communications Department, and to address the issue of access to the workplace.

The potential loss of revenue and the loss of campus parking during the Games is one of the issues facing the Traffic and Security Task Force, chaired by Buildings and Grounds Director Jim Helme. Other issues include possible street closures, extra campus security during the Games, the accreditation of UVic security personnel, and the integration of campus security with Athletes Village security.

The Task Force on Village Operations, chaired by Jim Griffith, will deal with a variety of matters regarding the operation of the Athletes Village, which will comprise the existing student residences and food services facilities, the new Family Student Housing Project, and possibly the Student Union Building, the Graduate Students Building and University Health Services facilities and personnel. The task force will help determine the precise dates and boundaries for the Village security zone, the use of UVic personnel for the operation and maintenance of food services and residences, the status of University Health Services, the role of the new Day Care Centre during the Games, the use of UVic's Chaplaincy Services by visiting athletes and coaches, and the handling of Commonwealth Games volunteers.

United Way may top its goal

With only a week remaining before the Grand Prize Draw, the UVic United Way Campaign has reached 74 per cent of its $62,000 objective. Faculty, staff and students have opened their wallets and generously contributed over $45,781. There is every indication that the goal will be reached if not exceeded.

David Glen, Co-ordinator of the UVic Campaign, is delighted by the enthusiastic response of the UVic community. "We are all very pleased with the response—particularly from new donors this year. This is all part of meeting our key objective to increase participation by the campus."

Twelve people who made pledges are also pleased. They're the winners of this week's prizes, donated by members of the University. The winners and their prizes are: Audrey McFarlane, Engineering Co-op—the book Aids Proofing Your Kids donated by the Psychology Department; Rudolph Wikramatilek, off campus—a box of scratch pads donated by Print Services; Patricia Kilner, Library Technical Services—dinner for two at the Faculty Club; Diane Kolehmainen, Library Technical Services—lamination service donated by the Curriculum Laboratory; Dr. John Langford, School of Public Administration—a luncheon ticket from the Gold Room donated by Food Services; Robert Allen, Computing Services—a luncheon ticket at Gordon Head donated by Food Services; Linda Maasch, Bookstore—a set of four official transcripts donated by the Records Services; Marnie Swanson, Library Administration—a physical fitness evaluation from the School of Physical Education; Susan Moskey, Library Technical Services—two tickets for Three Sisters, playing at the Phoenix, donated by the Theatre Department; Robie Liscomb, Public Relations and Information Services—a $50 certificate from University Extension; Marilyn Jackson, School of Nursing—a $10 vendcard for photocopying from the Library and Dr. Ian MacPherson, History—observer on the research vessel "John Strickland" donated by the Biology Department.

The Grand Prize is the Dunsmuir Saturday Night Escape for two. Other great prizes are: a university crest sweatshirt, tuition for one at the Mini University Summer Camp, tickets for a ferry trip to Saltspring Island, a darkroom development session and a carved wild fowl decoy. Draws for these, and other prizes, will be held at 12 noon, November 20.

Please help us reach our goal. The United Way Gift Form below may be forwarded to the United Way Co-ordinator c/o Accounting Services.

Wind Symphony to perform internationally

BY KEN FARIS

The UVic Wind Symphony, under the direction of Dr. Gerald King, has been chosen to represent Canada at the 14th Annual Western International Band Clinic in Portland, Oregon, Nov. 20 to 23. The Wind Symphony is the only Canadian group asked to perform at this year's conference, which will feature five other wind ensembles from the United States.

King, who has been teaching music and music education as an assistant professor in the Department of Arts in Education and the School of Music for the past four years, is the only conductor ever invited to make a fourth guest appearance at the conference, having previously directed high school instrumental groups and professional ensembles in 1981, 1985 and 1987.

King will also be one of six internationally known music educators to present a major clinic at this year's conference.

King says that this year's Wind Symphony is somewhat unique in that its 46 members are all undergraduates—music majors in music education, performance, composition and comprehensive. The group will perform contemporary composers' works, most of which were written in the past two years. Included will be a premiere performance of trombonist Ian McDougall's wind transcription of the Andante movement of his Concerto for Clarinet and Strings, featuring UVic music instructor Patricia Kostek as solo clarinetist.

More than 1,500 delegates from Canada, the United States and Europe will be at the conference, which focuses on performance and literature for wind ensembles and concert bands.

The UVic Wind Symphony will leave from Victoria on Nov. 20 and perform that evening in Portland at the Lewis and Clark College music department. The group is scheduled to perform at the Western International Band Clinic on Nov. 22, and will return to Victoria on Nov. 23. The tour will mark the first time the UVic Wind Symphony has performed in the United States.

In preparation for their American performances the Wind Symphony is giving a pre-tour concert on Thursday, Nov. 19, beginning at 8 p.m. in the UVic Centre Auditorium. Admission is by donation.

Wind Symphony conductor among Canada's most respected

When the UVic Wind Symphony performs at the 14th Annual Western International Band Clinic on Nov. 22, it will be under the baton of one of Canada's most accomplished and gifted conductors and music educators.

Dr. Gerald King, 39, who is in his fifth year at UVic as assistant professor of music and music education, has a broad range of musical experience as a clarinetist, conductor, adjudicator and educator.

At UVic his responsibilities include conducting the Wind Symphony and Jazz Choir and teaching conducting and music education methods. Prior to taking up his position at UVic, King spent 12 years teaching in the B.C. public school system, where his instrumental and choral ensembles gained national and international acclaim.

He also conducted the Pacific Symphonic Wind Ensemble and was conductor and music director of the Fraser Valley Symphony Orchestra.

In 1974, King was featured in a national television documentary about young Canadian musicians, in which he was recognized as one of the country's most promising young conductors.

King has adjudicated for such organizations as MusicFest Canada, Heritage Music Festivals International, Educational Music Festivals International, International Music Festivals, and soon for Festival Canada.

As a clarinetist, he has performed with a variety of ensembles including the Vancouver Opera Association and the La Scala Opera Company. Among his teachers are Ronald de Kant (clarinet) of the Cincinnati Conservatory, Wayne Gorder (conducting) of Kent State University, and Kazuyoshi Akiyama (conducting) of the Toho Gakuen Music School and Tokyo Kosei Wind Orchestra.

King

Recently, King made guest conducting appearances at the International Peace Gardens in North Dakota and the American Band College in Oregon. Prior to the UVic Wind Symphony's performance in Oregon, King will guest conduct an All-Province Honour Band for the British Columbia Band Association as part of Canadian Band Week.

King is the Western Canadian Chair of the International Clarinet Society and an executive member of the British Columbia Music Educators Association. He also serves on the Board of Directors for the Pacific Coast Music Festivals Association and is a past executive member of the Canadian Music Educators Association.

He is a published author and has recorded for CBC Radio. He was recently nominated to serve as an officer on the World Association for Symphonic Bands and Ensembles Council.

UVic's campus is expanding far beyond the boundaries of Ring Road. The new Visual Arts Building (upper and lower left) is rising between the Phoenix and the Fine Arts Buildings southwest of campus, while the married housing complex (upper right) is rising southeast of the intersection of Finnerty and Sinclair Roads. At lower right, new roads from the married housing complex lead to Finnerty Road.

The Three Sisters by Anton Chekhov opens at the Phoenix

David Mamet's adaptation of Chekhov's The Three Sisters is at the Phoenix Theatre Tuesday through Saturday from Nov. 12 to 28 at 8 p.m. The third of Anton Chekhov's great family dramas, this modern classic explores the plight of Olga, Masha, Irina and their brother Andrei as they confront their personal crises and long for the possibilities of change. The setting is Imperial Russia, 1901. The comedy spans four years in the lives of the Prozorov family and their friends. The characters are instantly familiar and their predicaments are universally recognizable. This seldom-produced script of one of the best loved and most frequently revived plays in Russian theatrical history is directed by Dr. Giles Hogya assisted by Pia Wyatt. Set and costumes are designed by Dany Lyne, and lighting is by Jane Orion Smith and Allan Stichbury. Sound and choreography is by Pia Wyatt and music consultant is Dale McIntosh. Irina is played by Brooke Weissler (left), Masha by Shannon Anderson (centre) and Olga by Paula Hoover. Fifteen theatre students share the spotlight in the various roles.

Researchers ponder climate change's impact on North

BY KEN FARIS

With the unusually warm, dry summer the West Coast experienced this year, the weather has become as much a topic of discussion here as it is in Ontario, which endured the coolest, wettest summer on record. Increasingly, the general public is becoming concerned about anomalies in weather patterns. Hot environmental news stories these days include the state of the ozone layer and skin cancer, carbon dioxide emissions and global warming.

Nowhere are these concerns more pressing than in the North, say researchers at UVic's Centre for Sustainable Regional Development (CSRD). Weather patterns in the northern latitudes determine animal migration routines, ice flow patterns, sea water levels and a host of other factors that are crucial to human and natural life in the Arctic. The CSRD, under the supervision of Director Steve Lonergan, has been given a five-year assignment by the federal government to develop a model for assessing the possible socio-economic impact of global warming on the Northwest Territories' Mackenzie Basin region.

One year into the project, which is partially funded through the Canadian government's Green Plan, CSRD researchers have nearly completed the first phase of the project: population and economic projections in the Mackenzie Basin.

"This is not a trivial task," says Lonergan in his office in University House 4, the CSRD's headquarters on campus. "The study area extends into five regions: B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan, the Northwest Territories and the Yukon."

Inherent in the study are the views and experiences of the native peoples who inhabit the study region. Lonergan explains that native representatives have been involved in every stage of the study in three ways: in providing local native knowledge of the regions through oral history and stories; in their participation in long-term studies involving native population projections; and, in eliciting ideas about the possible economic impacts of climate change on northern communities such as Aklavik, a small town situated along the banks of the Mackenzie River above the Arctic Circle.

Data is also being collected on animal migrations and food sources in the Mackenzie Basin. This information will be used to help determine, for example, the effects of climate warming on wetlands, and subsequent effects on bird migrations in the North.

The next stage of the project will be to develop a resource accounting model, a framework which integrates the data collected in phase one of the project. This computer-based model will be designed to allow researchers and planners to manipulate inputs and outputs and see the effects on economic, ecological and social systems. This three-year portion of the project began this fall.

Major players in the project include the federal government, the Canadian Climate Centre in Toronto, the provincial governments of B.C. and Alberta and the territorial governments in the N.W.T. and the Yukon, as well as universities throughout Canada. Other interested parties include the northern transportation and resource development industries, as transportation is a major cost in getting products and resources to and from Canada's Western Arctic.

"The resource industries are very interested in our study

Top math students offered scholarships

Twelve of Victoria's top high school math students have been awarded $500 scholarships to UVic for their performance on national mathematics contests. The marks achieved by the dozen students puts them among the top one per cent of the approximately 24,000 Canadian students who wrote the 1991-92 Fermat math contests.

"The scholarships can be applied towards any full-time program at UVic, but, naturally, we're hoping to stimulate an interest in our science programs," says Dr. Bill Pfaffenberger, the Honours Advisor in UVic's Department of Mathematics and Statistics.

Grade 11 and 12 students attending schools on Vancouver Island south of Shawnigan Lake are eligible for the scholarships. While other Canadian universities award scholarships or recruit students based on the results of the Fermat and Euclid national math tests, UVic is the first to target their scholarships for students living within commuting distance of the campus.

"We want to raise awareness of the quality of our programs and encourage students of this calibre to stay home and do their undergraduate work at UVic," explains Pfaffenberger. "Usually students like this are offered scholarships elsewhere. We're also explaining to their parents the economic advantage to having their children study locally."

Pfaffenberger hopes the scholarships encourage more schools to become involved in the Euclid and Fermat math contests. He's especially eager to see more young women become involved in the competition.

The recipients of the 1991-92 scholarships, and their teachers, were honoured at a dinner at UVic's Faculty Club Oct. 22. The winners and their respective schools are:

Jahangir Charania, St. Michaels University School; Yen-Yang (Michael) Chen, Oak Bay Secondary School; Peter Dukes, Mount Douglas Secondary School; Cristina Hristea, Lester B. Pearson College; Hakjin Lim, St. Michaels University School; Andres Rodriguez, Mount Douglas Secondary School; Steven Tsai, Shawnigan Lake School; Jason Binab, St. Michaels University School; David Garton, Claremont Secondary School; Mark Laidlaw, Esquimalt Secondary School; Shawn Tripp, Claremont Secondary School and Jeremy van Raamsdonk, St. Michaels University School.

At the first annual Gil Sherwin Workshop for Teaching Excellence, on Oct. 31, more than 40 geography faculty members, graduate students and undergraduate representatives explored ways to maintain and improve teaching methods. Named after Gil Sherwin, recently deceased Geography senior lab instructor whose dedication to teaching excellence is legendary among those who knew her, the workshop was held with the assistance of the UVic Learning and Teaching Centre. Participating, from left to right, are Karen Dunham, David Ahronian, Jennifer Ellis and Martin Monkman.

Eminent South African to lecture

One of the architects of South Africa's new constitutional framework, Professor Charles Dlamini, will discuss the future of his country in the 1992 Leon Ladner Lecture, "Constitutional Negotiations for a Future South Africa: Problems and Prospects." The free public lecture will be given at 5:30 p.m. Nov. 25 in Begbie 158. It will be preceded by a public reception in Begbie's student lounge at 4:30 p.m. Dlamini has influenced discussions on a new constitutional framework which incorporates a Bill of Rights for a future South Africa. He is senior lecturer in the Department of Private Law at the University of Zululand.

Kenneth Hare to lecture

Dr. Kenneth Hare, University Professor Emeritus in Geography of the University of Toronto and Chancellor of Trent University, will discuss the clash between scientific discovery and matters of conscience at two free public lectures and a faculty seminar. Hare will lecture on "Global Change: Issues for Science, Religion and Society," in the David Lam Auditorium at 4 p.m. on Nov. 24. His second lecture, "Science and Matters of Conscience," will be delivered at St. John the Divine Anglican Church, 1611 Quadra Street, at 8:00 p.m. on Nov. 25. On Nov. 26, Hare will deliver a faculty seminar, "What is Scientific Scepticism?" at 11:30 a.m. in Human and Social Development A254. The lectures and seminar are sponsored by the Centre for Studies in Religion and Society.

Hare has served as Chairman of the Royal Society of Canada Commission on Lead in the Environment and Chairman of the Royal Society of Canada Study on the Nuclear Winter Phenomenon.

AUCC urges tighter gun control

Governments must move quickly to strengthen the current firearms control provisions, says the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada (AUCC). The association passed a resolution at its annual business meeting on Oct. 1, in Regina, urging the federal government to strengthen its gun control legislation and calling on all governments to improve implementation of Canada's gun control law.

"Recent events on university campuses demonstrate the need for stricter controls on firearms. Firearms were used in the tragedy at the Ecole Polytechnique almost three years ago and in the recent Concordia University incident. In the latter legally acquired handguns were used," said Dr. Kenneth Ozmon, AUCC chair and president of Saint Mary's University. "We are adding our voices to the growing list of organizations and individuals convinced and insistent that Canada must have more effective gun control."

Former New Zealand PM to speak

The implications of this year's UN Conference on the Environment for Pacific Rim countries will be addressed by former Prime Minister of New Zealand, the Rt. Hon. Sir Geoffrey Palmer PC, KCMG, in the 1992 David and Dorothy Lam Lecture. "The Rio Summit—Success or Failure for the Pacific" is the title of Palmer's lecture, to be held Nov. 30 at 7:30 p.m. in Begbie 159. It is free and open to the public. Palmer is a member of the World Wide Fund for Nature International Advisory Council, the University's of Iowa's Global Environmental Group and the Executive Advisory Board of Earth Trust.

25 Year Club gains 36 new members

Of the new faculty and staff who arrived on campus in 1967, 35 stayed and have now completed a quarter century of service. A recognition dinner was held on Oct. 29 and the University administration gathered to pay tribute to its long serving members. During the evening President David Strong presented each new member with a silver pin in recognition of their long service to the University. Also Ian Stewart, recently retired Board of Governors Chairman, was made an Honorary Member of the 25 Year Club. Since its inception in 1988 to recognize the University's 25th Anniversary, the 25 Year Club has bestowed this honour on one other person, President Emeritus Howard Petch.

The club's new members are: Mrs. Madeline T. Barnes, McPherson Library; Dr. Barrington F. Beardsmore, French Lang. & Literature; Dr. Robert D. Bell, Physical Education; Dr. Michael R. Best, English; Dr. Gordon W. Bushnell, Chemistry; Dr. Gerald A. Carr, Physical Education; Dr. Fred I. Cooperstock, Physics & Astronomy; Dr. Thomas W. Dingle, Chemistry; Dr. Pam Duncan, Psychology; Dr. Harold D. Foster, Geography; Mrs. Christine Greenwood, Chemistry; Dr. Lowell A. Hinrichs, Mathematics & Statistics; Dr. Joseph F. ## Strong addresses safety fears

Dear Editor:

Several articles and letters have appeared in the local press recently regarding the safety of faculty, staff and students at UVic. I would like to reassure everyone in the campus community that our administration treats all safety issues completely seriously. Each is scrutinized with utmost care, given that most cases are neither simple nor straightforward, and each has to be handled on an individual basis to protect the rights of all concerned.

While I am not at liberty to discuss individual cases, I can tell you that a great deal of attention is given by senior administrators to any case where safety issues are involved. The University administration has ignored no such situation.

As well, a false impression has been given that the University Act does not give university administrations the power to expel disruptive students. To the contrary, section 58 (1) of the Act states, "The president has the power to suspend a student and to deal summarily with any matter of student discipline." That is the authority, but in the interests of justice, universities exercise this authority through a number of internal policies dealing with specific subjects such as harassment, sexual harassment, conflict of interest and codes of conduct. The 1992-93 UVic Calendar states, "Any student whose behaviour causes or is likely to cause wrongful injury to any person...will be reported to the President for disciplinary action and may be suspended, subject to appeal to the Senate." Needless to say, there must not be any random or ad hoc expulsion of students without due process, and processes are in place to ensure that justice is done and safety prevails.

UVic is a public institution, endeavoring to maintain and enhance a tradition of openness in the community, and, on any given day, as many as 20,000 people come to our campus. The University is doing everything it can to ensure the safety of all members of the University community.

Yours sincerely,
David F. Strong,
President and Vice-Chancellor

Decline of library affects studies—grad student

Dear Editor,

I don't believe the founders of this university would be pleased to see the present condition of the McPherson library. If you walk into the main library on the UVic campus today, you will find lineups for computer search terminals, books piled in the aisles from a shortage of shelf space, a lack of audio/visual materials, not a single typewriter for public use, an overworked staff and cutbacks in hours in practically every department.

The current problems which exist in the library today are due primarily to the fact that the library has not received adequate funding to maintain historic levels of staff and the purchase of materials. Coupled with this reality is the increasing cost of serials which have forced the library administration to cut back in book purchases.

With an ever expanding student population, especially in the graduate programs, there is an increased need for library materials. Because of the cutbacks, especially in book purchases, I find it nearly impossible to locate books published after 1988. This current situation has serious implications for my ability to successfully complete my graduate studies program.

In order to resolve this short term problem I am writing to appeal to the university community to please consider donating faculty publications and review copies to the McPherson library and the archives. Your donations will help students complete their program of study in the short term.

The long term goal is to secure adequate funding for the library either through increasing the annual budget back to historic levels or immediately increasing the allocation from the Capital Campaign far in excess of the two million which has been designated.

It is my opinion that the library is and must continue to be the centerpiece of the university. The library represents the equitable distribution of resources of the entire community. By not adequately funding the university library everyone suffers, not only within the university community, but these cutbacks also reduce access to all residents of Greater Victoria, the Gulf Islands and the entire region.

Even the perception that the library has been neglected bodes ill for continued support of the university from outside the campus. Surely I am not alone in noticing the decline of this important academic resource. The question remains, what can we do to rectify this unacceptable situation?

Sincerely,
Ms. Claire Heffernan

New alarm system improves UVic safety

BY TANIA STRETCHENIUK

Beeping monitors in their pockets used to have UVic patrol officers racing to J-Hut. There they would check an alarm panel to find the source of the emergency at the University. Although no serious fires or mechanical failures have occurred, the lapse in time between the sounding of the alarm and the determination of its origin could have been costly, indeed tragic.

However, UVic is now a safer place to work and study thanks to a computerized communications network. Installed over the summer, the advanced network effectively monitors alarms at the University to enable quicker responses to fires and mechanical failures.

"The new system offers important improvements to the way fire and mechanical emergencies are handled at the University," says Doug Hull, Projects Officer, Maintenance.

Through a computer-generated voice activated on their monitors, the new communications network gives patrol officers details about the cause and location of the alarm. For example, it tells whether the alarm indicates a fire or mechanical problem, and it signifies which building the alarm is coming from. "The ability of the system to detect mechanical problems is especially important," notes Hull. For example, sensors are able to detect if a pump is not working properly or if a room is too hot or too cold. Such a feature allows maintenance staff to respond quickly to situations that could turn into serious problems if not detected immediately, he adds.

The new system also enhances the ability of firefighters at the Saanich firehall to respond to alarms at the University, says Hull. "It gives them a lot more details to go on, such as the exact location of the alarm. We're very pleased with the whole system."

Laura Walsh, a fourth year arts student, has been appointed to the provincial government's B.C. Youth Council. Walsh's volunteer experience includes terms as President of the Klahanie Rangers, director of the Board of the United Nations Association of Canada and Saanich Youth Co-ordinator for the Tante-Oom career mentorship program. The Youth Council was established in 1985, the United Nations International Year of Youth, as a forum for the exchange of young people's ideas. Council members, aged 15 to 24, represent various social and ethnic groups, career interests and regions of British Columbia.

The next meeting of the Retired Faculty Discussion Group will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 25 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Dr. William Gaddes, 1788 Rockland Ave. Dr. Philip Wallace, ex-McGill University Prof. Emeritus of Physics, will lead a discussion entitled "Could Science Explain the Origin of the Universe?" Those wishing to attend, please phone Dr. Gaddes at 595-6881. Other enquiries about the group may be directed to Dr. Lionel Adey at 477-4581.

Co-op Education Co-ordinators Ian Main (Engineering) and Dr. Mark Loken (Public Administration) co-ordinated Outreach '92, a co-op employer recognition awards ceremony in Ottawa on Oct. 19. Companies in the Ottawa area who have consistently hired UVic co-op students over the years were presented with a Director's Award. Approximately 70 people attended the first-ever awards ceremony and another is planned for Victoria employers in 1993.
